1. There is a Soviet headquarters in Swidnica (Schweidnitz), opposite the railroad station of Gorna Swidnica. A red gate, 50 meters from the railroad, opens onto a large compound with barracks for officers and their families. There are numerous female soldiers and officers among the Soviet personnel.

2. Underground arms and ammunition depots, surrounded by a barbed wire fence three meters high, are located on a 700 x 1000 meter area near the Soviet military cemetery. A Polish engineers unit is quartered in barracks on one side of the fence, and Soviet army personnel occupy the barracks on the other side. A large number of airforce and heavy artillery troops arrived at the Soviet barracks after Stalin's death.

3. A factory, known as M-9, is located on Ulica Wodna, formerly Westerplatte, near the Ogniowaly brick factory.
